

Cathédrale St Maurice - Angers

We talked about the new porch by Kengo Kuma and the dig that just finished. The archeologists found over 100 skeletons total.

Here is one of the pictures I took when the dig had only just started in March 2024.

In the cathedral, you may have seen the beautiful wooden piece with seats and benches in the choir, from the XVIII century. There is a strong debate in Angers, as they were removed to be restored a few years ago, and in doing so, we discovered paintings from the XIII century (picture below). The decision was made to replace the seats and hide the paintings.

This is the type of decisions we constantly have to make in France.

